“ Anna and Bob. Two names that were used together like peanut butter and jelly. My heart is broken that the Bob half passed away yesterday.

What kind of man was Bob? When my sister was a teenager and he noticed she was driving on bald tires he had a new set put on her car.... not because he was wealthy but because he was a good man. He (and Anna) were going to meet me at Mom's on Saturday to build a hand rail so she could get up her steps safely.... not because he was a strong, skilled carpenter but because he was a good man. When I visited he always stopped what he was doing, fixed coffee and drank it with me.... not because he needed a break or was thirsty but because he was a good man.

Good men are a gift. We're lucky when we experience them. Anna, Jennifer and Melinda have suffered the staggering loss of a good man.... but a good man sows strength in his loved ones that doesn't dissipate when he's gone. It will be very, very hard but these strong women will carry on Bob's legacy.

Bob was a good man.
