“ When we were growing up we lived up at Red Campbell (I think that is how it is spelled) I havent been back there in years. There was alot of us kids. We lived side by side in the old coal company houses. We played up in the hills picked berries picked up nuts. Played out in the dark to see who would get scared first and go inside. There was always about 15 to 20 kids gathered to play. Those were the good days. Jean you were love and will be missed.
