One thing that sticks out in my mind about Menzie is the love she held for her kids, grandkids & great grandkids. They were her everything & blessed to have her as their Granny. In almost 40 years we had only a couple disagreements, she was kind enough to let me (ex daughter-in-law) have access to her home while she worked so I could babysit Mady without running back & forth to my own house in another county. Not many ex mother-in-laws would have done that & I always will appreciate her gesture. She was one of a kind. A very strong, stubborn, contrary lady that give her all to her kids, grandkids. I can say that with a smile as she knew she was. They will greatly miss her everyday presence in their life but will have lots of good memories to cling to. Breathe easy Menzie as all your struggles are over. Losing your husband, son & granddaughter took a toll on you but you stood strong. Forever missed & loved. Thank you Granny for loving my kids & grandkids as they were your own.

I miss her so much... Things arent the same without her... I decided i would post a little something to let people know something.... I want her to know im sorry for ever getting grumpy with family.. Its just not worth it.. I was onto her all the time.. I would take her to doctor she wouldnt take her meds... Would really annoy me.. Right now i would give anything to hear her voice again... I would drive her anywhere he needed to go... At this point i just wish i had my granny back... Everything reminds me of her... Ive been having issues with sleep walking the past two weeks... As humans we really dont know what someone means to us till there gone.. What im saying is this make sure when you talk to someone family or friend dont forget to tell them you love them... Cause it could be the very last thing you ever say to them... I love my Granny... At this point i have been lost for words and i regret that due to my own health i couldnt do every thing she needed from me... I would love to hear phone ring it and granny to say i need you to take me to doctor or store.... I keep holding on to when i found her she still had a twinkle in her eyes i held her and said i love you and told her not to leave... If there is a heaven thats where my granny is... No matter what she never question or blame god for anything bad.. I want that but as of right now im angry... But im also happy too... She no longer sick or pulling for air... No more pain... I miss her and im starting to cry while i write this so im just going say to all my family and friends i love you all... I got to tell her i love her as i seen the light in her eyes go out... Her last words was to me was to hurry and get there.. I wasnt thinking right i put her head on a pillow but i was just so upset i didnt get to cover her with a blanket... MY heart is broken and im not sure glue will fix it this time :(

“ She will be badly missed... I remember the first time I met Menzie, my husband Randy's aunt... she welcomed me to the family with a hug and ask me if I knew what I was getting myself into coming into this family... so very glad that I'm a part of it... lived Menzie so much, she was amazing to me. RIP Menzie. Love Cheryl & Randy Barton
