“ I remember as a kid visiting her Grandparents and Reama talking about getting married. She was so excited, her eyes would sparkle. I remember asking about a scare she had on her face and thinking I wanted one because she was so beautiful, the scare became beautiful too. Growing up I remember so many visits and being so excited to see her. Even recent years when we stood together holding each other's hand, crying over the loss of her sister Rita and Aunt Nola. I will never forget how we leaned on each other, trying to get through the loss of these beautiful family members/friends. My last visit was at her home. My 91 year young Mother couldn't go inside her home. Reama had to see her and had us to lead her out to the car. It was just who she was. This cancer may have taken her life but it didn't control who she was. Now we have to lean on each other to get through this horrific loss. Thank God it's never goodbye but see you later my beautiful friend and cuzin. Your eyes will forever sparkle.
