“ Christina, Shaun, and girls. This year has been a hard one with both of you losing a parent. I know word have no meaning right now. But just remember your parents are now being held in the arms of God. The have no pain, they only feel love. Remember all the moments you have had with them. Remember they are still here with you if you need them. The lessen they have taught you, the love they showed you. It never ends and you will have that for the rest of your lives.
